1. Introduction

The COVID-19 is an ongoing pandemic, which started in Wuhan, Hubei province, China during the latter part of 2019. The World Health Organization (WHO) declared the outbreak to be a Public Health Emergency of International Concern on the 30th of January 2020 and recognized it as a pandemic on the 11th of March 2020. At the moment no specific vaccines or treatments have been identified even through many clinical trials are being conducted. COVID-19 is identified to be highly infectious and therefore the recommended preventive measures include hand washing, wearing mask, maintaining distance from other people, and monitoring and self-isolation for people who suspect they are infected. Authorities worldwide have responded to this pandemic situation by implementing travel restrictions, quarantines, curfews, workplace hazard controls, and facility closures. The Sri Lankan government imposed nationwide curfew on the 16th of March with short interval relaxations to combat the outbreak of coronavirus pandemic as a result of the rapidly growing number of cases being reported within the nation. In this time of crisis, Sarvodaya Shramadana Movement a well-established internationally recognized grass root level organization that has been severing the nation for over sixty years have taken the initiative to respond to this pandemic situation through the dissemination of information, provision of aid (Dry rations and Sanitary packs), marking of social distancing squares and mobilizing the communities to effectively respond to the ongoing Covid-19 pandemic in order to protect all communities across the island during these difficult times.

As a result of the Covid-19 pandemic and its consequential effects such as lockdowns and curfews has negatively affected the daily lives of many individuals engaged in a variety of sectors of work. Yet it is no doubt that some individuals are more adversely affected by the current situation than others. Two such groups that are vulnerable in the face of the current situation can be identified as daily-paid workers and low-income generating families live in Slumps and apartments. The lockdown and the curfew that was implemented impacted millions of daily wage earners and low income generating families and many of them struggled to provide for their families with no income coming in. As a result Sarvodaya identified and verified the situation of such vulnerable families with the support of the Sarvodaya district officers and provided dry rations to these vulnerable families.

Through the dissemination of knowledge and active intervention Sarvodaya aims on creating a society that not only adheres to social distancing but also promotes social distancing to overcome this current pandemic situation and as a result one such action taken by Sarvodaya has been the demarcation of social distancing squares in prominent public places such as hospitals and other public institutions. The social distancing squares will also be demarcated in other spaces that are likely to be crowded such as bus stands in order to encourage individuals to practice social distancing while slowly easing into the everyday activities since the relaxation of the island wide curfew. The demarcation of the social distancing squares implemented in all twenty-five districts including Colombo and Gampaha, which can be identified as the most populated districts in Sri Lanka. Responsible practice of social distancing during this time of pandemic is vital to flatten the curve and ease the severity of this pandemic in the nation.

5. Establishing Hand Washing Stations
